EXTREME MAKEOVER EDITION

HILL CONSTRUCTION

What has six stories and is large enough to make Hill Field disappear?

If you were thinking of a giant book of fairy tales, you are dead wrong.

If you were thinking of a brand new college house, then you get 1000 points!

Starting in January of 2014, the University of Pennsylvania will begin constructing a new, as yet unnamed, college house.

The house will have a comparable number residents to that of our own KCECH with over 340 students.

Sixty million dollars have already been raised of the one hundred and twenty-five million dollar goal.

Riddle of the Week

There is a man. He is trapped in a room. This room contains no doors, no windows, no exits or entrances of any kind. The only things in this room with the man are one mirror and one table. Nothing more, nothing less. And yet the man exits the room.

How did he do it?

The university is expecting that part of the remaining sixty five million dollars will come from the naming gift, valued at fifty million dollars.

Most of the suites in the building will have three or four bedrooms. Some will singles and doubles. And some will have five or six bedrooms, a first for Penn.

The house will include another dining hall, which will be Penn's fourth. The dining hall will only serve Penn's traditional all you can eat style during dinner and for other meal times, it will serve grab and go style.

The new building will also be home to a courtyard surrounded by a variety of lounges, media, seminar, and music rooms.

Construction on the new college house is expected to complete in January of 2016.

DARKNESS: HOUSE BY JACK TERN

Red. So much red. It had been three days since he had entered the red world and still no change. It had started to get annoying. Things were far better when he had to imagine everything.

And worse, he was hearing things again. Except this time they were louder. And they would not stop.

"Yak ouo ye ra. Es ael pp ue kaw. Gni de elb er uo y." Over and over again. As far as he could tell anyway.

But he powered on. He did not have much choice, after all. Oddly enough he did not seem to need food or sustenance of any kind.

After another five days of walking, red, and voices, he stopped. He had noticed something out of the corner of his eye. He turned on the spot but saw nothing.

He turned again, much more slowly this time. And there it was. A slightly lighter shade of red. He headed its direction and whatever it was grew bigger.

As he got closer, its shape became more distinguished. It was a house. Somewhat oddly shaped. It looked similar to a mushroom. But still a house with windows and doors in all the right places.

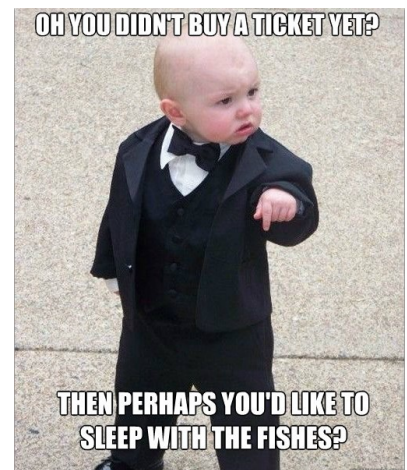

He approached the front door and knocked loudly three times. There was no answer.

He tried again. This time he rapped five times. Still nothing.

He tried once more. Seven times in a row. Each time he knocked harder than the time before. By the seventh knock his knuckles were bleeding. And still no answer.

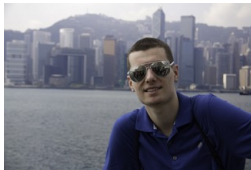

He went to the window and broke it with his sword. After clearing the glass, he stepped through the window. And that... That was when everything changed.

Character of the Week

PAWEL UCHMAN

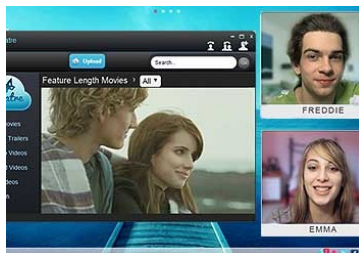

I'm the EH4 RA and I love KCECH! At Wharton, I concentrate in Finance and Statistics and I love to play tennis, travel, and practice photography. My unique name comes from my Polish Motherland, so please stop by to check out my Polish paraphernalia, BUT try and refrain from pronouncing my name Pablo. I'm KCECH's tallest staff, but am terrible at basketball, so I die a little every time someone asks if I play. To EH4: Couldn't have asked for a better, smarter, cooler group of Penn Students - You Rock!

THE WEEK AHEAD: 3/21–3/27

3/23, TBD– STWing Robotics Fair. Interested in artificial intelligence? Join the Science and Technology Wing in their annual robotics fair!

3/23, TBD– Habitat for Humanity. Like construction? Help out humanity by building houses with the rest of Kings Court English.

SYNAPTOP

Are your friends ever far away? Or perhaps you're in a long distance relationship?

3/24, 6pm–VSA Culture Show. See the Vietnamese Students' Association perform their annual culture show, entitled Pho in Love at Dunlop Auditorium.

3/25, TBD–Dinner Discussion. Join Women in Computer Science in another excellent dinner discussion

Then check out Synaptop. Synaptop is an online video chatting service with some additional features.

It allows you to collaborate and edit documents together. And you can share files too!

But that's the boring stuff. The cool bit is that you listen to music together. Choose an audio file and it will play on both computers simultaneously. Same thing with video. Pick a movie or even a YouTube clip and you can enjoy a movie with your friend as if they are right next to you.

3/27, TBD–ICA Trip. Join Perspectives in Humanities in touring the Institute of Contemporary Art.

3/27, 10pm–Study Break. Celebrate World Theatre Day at our study break with performances and of course, food.

Now the only thing missing is a way for it to give you some popcorn and soda.
